Mozart's Journey to Prague and a Selection of Poems (Penguin Classics) Eduard Morike

Eduard Mörike's delightfully high-spirited 1855 novella is an imaginary re-creation of the journey Mozart made from Vienna to Prague in 1787 to conduct the first performance of Don Giovanni. Set in the rococo world of the Bohemian nobility, the story paints an unforgettable picture of Mozart's creative genius—its playful heights and its terrible depths. Mörike's own lyrical powers are also displayed in his poetry, which combines classicism and romanticism with elements of the traditional folk and fairy tale.

- First time in Penguin Classics
- Bilingual edition contains the most extensive selection of Mörike's poetry ever translated into English verse
- Includes an appendix on Mörike and Austrian composer Hugo Wolf, who set Mörike's poems to music
